MINORITY VIEWS

[To accompany H.R. 1699]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Financial Services, to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 1699) to amend the Truth in Lending Act to modify the definitions of a mortgage originator and a high-cost mortgage, to amend the Secure and Fair Enforcement for Mortgage Licensing Act of 2008 to modify the definition of a loan originator, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon without amendment and recommend that the bill do pass.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Introduced by Representative Andy Barr on March 23, 2017, H.R. 1699, the “Preserving Access to Manufactured Housing Act of 2017”, amends Section 103 of the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) (15 U.S.C. 1602) to clarify that retailers of manufactured homes, or their employees, are not “mortgage originators” for purposes of the TILA unless these retailers or their employees receive compensation from a lender, mortgage broker, or loan originator. The bill also amends the Section 1503 of the Secure and Fair Enforcement for Mortgage Licensing (SAFE) Act of 2008 (12 U.S.C. 5102) to specify that such a retailer is generally not a “loan originator” subject to requirements under that Act.

The bill also revises the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's (CFPB) definition of "high cost mortgages," and adjusts the Home Ownership and Equity Protection Act (HOEPA) high-cost mortgage thresholds for a first mortgage of less than $75,000 on a dwelling that is not real property to: (1) an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) that will exceed the average prime offer rate by more than 10 percentage points, or (2) points and fees that will exceed the greater of 5 percent of the total transaction amount or $3,000.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

In 1994 Congress amended, and President Clinton signed into law, amendments to TILA, known as HOEPA, to address abusive practices in mortgage re-financings and closed-end home equity loans with high interest rates or high fees. Since HOEPA's enactment, re-financings or home equity mortgage loans meeting any of HOEPA's high-cost coverage tests have been subject to special disclosure requirements and restrictions on loan terms, and HOEPA provides enhanced remedies to consumers with high-cost mortgages for violations of the law. HOEPA identifies a class of high-cost mortgage loans through rate and fee triggers, and it provides consumers that enter into these transactions with special protections.

On January 10, 2013, the CFPB issued a final rule to implement the changes to HOEPA mandated by the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (P.L. 111-203). The Dodd-Frank Act expanded HOEPA's scope to include purchase money mortgage loans and home equity lines of credit. Previously HOEPA only applied to re-financings and home equity installment loans.

Additionally, the Dodd-Frank Act, and the implementing rule, amends the tests used to determine whether a loan is 'high cost' under HOEPA. Previously a loan was covered by HOEPA if the annual percentage rate (APR) exceeded the rate for Treasury securities with a comparable maturity by more than 10 percentage points, or if the points and fees paid by the consumer exceeded the greater of 8 percent of the loan amount or $400. The $400 figure, set in 1994, was adjusted annually based on the Consumer Price Index. The Dodd-Frank Act, and the implementing rule, lowered the rate threshold for HOEPA coverage. Under the new regime, a loan will be covered by HOEPA if the APR applicable to the transaction exceeds the average prime offer rate (APOR) for a comparable transaction by more than 6.5 percent for a first-lien mortgage, or by more than 8.5 percent for a first-lien mortgage if the transaction is for less than $50,000. Additionally, the Dodd-Frank Act, and the implementing rule, reduces the total amount of points and fees that would trigger HOEPA coverage. A loan will be covered by HOEPA if the points and fees associated with the transaction exceed 5 percent of the total loan amount for a loan greater than or equal to $20,000; or 8 percent of the total loan amount or $1,000 (whichever is less) for a loan less than $20,000.

H.R. 1699 clarifies that a manufactured home sales person is not originating a loan when it assists a consumer apply for a mortgage or prepare loan information, unless they receive compensation from a creditor, lender or mortgage broker. The legislation also improves the "high cost" mortgage definition by slightly increasing the maximum interest rate and points and fees cap for manufactured loans that are provided for less than $75,000 in order to preserve access to mortgage credit for low and moderate-income consumers who are seeking to buy a manufactured home.

In a statement in support for H.R. 1699 dated March 24, 2017, the Manufactured Housing Institute wrote:

Recent Home Mortgage Disclosure Act data shows that consumers have been shut out of the market for quality, affordable housing because regulations have decreased the availability of financing for manufactured homes, which are a vital source of affordable housing for millions of low- and moderate-income families across the country . . .

. . . H.R. 1699 modifies the definition of “high-cost” loans so that manufactured home loans are not unfairly swept under this designation simply due to their small size. The provision of the Dodd-Frank Act that established parameters for which mortgage loans are classified as “high cost” included more flexible annual percentage rate (APR) and points and fees provisions for small loans. This was in recognition of the simple mathematical fact that fixed costs on smaller loans translate into higher percentages of the total loan. In practice, this flexibility has not been sufficient to address market realities. Thus, some manufactured housing lenders have exited the market and others are no longer offering smaller dollar amount (and most affordable) loans.

In a letter of support for H.R. 1699 dated May 1, 2017, the Mortgage Bankers Association wrote:

[H.R. 1699] would allow more low-balance loans to fit within the cap on points and fees under the Home Ownership and Equity Protection Act by revising those triggers. This will allow more consumers, particularly on the lower end of the economic spectrum, to gain access to safe and affordable mortgage credit.

In a letter of support for H.R. 1699 dated October 11, 2017, the National Association of Federal Credit Unions Inc. wrote:

[H.R. 1699] would modify the definitions of a mortgage originator and a high-cost mortgage to ensure that consumers of small-balance mortgage loans, including manufactured housing loans, will have access credit. Working families across the country, particularly in rural America, depend on access to financing for affordable manufactured homes and this bill addresses an important barrier to entry in the marketplace.

H.R. 1699—Preserving Access to Manufactured Housing Act of 2017

H.R. 1699 would amend the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) and the SAFE Mortgage Licensing Act to change the definitions of mortgage originator, loan originator, and high-cost mortgage. Under TILA, employees of manufactured-home retailers that do not accept residential mortgage loan applications, offer or negotiate terms of loans, or advise consumers on loan terms are excluded from the definition of mortgage originator. H.R. 1699 would broaden that exception to include retailers of manufactured homes and their employees, as long as they receive no more compensation for selling a home with a mortgage than they would for selling the same home for cash. The bill also would amend the SAFE Mortgage Licensing Act to exempt the same people from the definition of loan originator.

TILA also provides special protections, such as restrictions on certain fees, to consumers who are offered high-cost mortgages. H.R. 1699 would increase the amount an originator or creditor could charge in interest rates and fees for a loan on manufactured housing before the loan would be considered a high-cost mortgage.

Based on an analysis of information from the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 1699 would increase direct spending by less than $500,000 for that agency to implement the proposed changes to TILA and the SAFE Mortgage Licensing Act. Because enacting the bill would affect direct spending, pay-as-you-go procedures apply. Enacting the bill would not affect revenues.

CBO estimates that enacting H.R. 1699 would not increase net direct spending or on-budget deficits in any of the four consecutive 10-year periods beginning in 2028.

H.R. 1699 contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

The CBO staff contact for this estimate is Stephen Rabent. The estimate was approved by H. Samuel Papenfuss, Deputy Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

FEDERAL MANDATES STATEMENT

This information is provided in accordance with section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995.

The Committee has determined that the bill does not contain Federal mandates on the private sector. The Committee has determined that the bill does not impose a Federal intergovernmental mandate on State, local, or tribal governments.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

APPLICABILITY TO LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

The Committee finds that the legislation does not relate to the terms and conditions of employment or access to public services or accommodations within the meaning of the section 102(b)(3) of the Congressional Accountability Act.

EARMARK IDENTIFICATION

With respect to clause 9 of rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee has carefully reviewed the provisions of the bill and states that the provisions of the bill do not contain any congressional earmarks, limited tax benefits, or limited tariff benefits within the meaning of the rule.

DUPLICATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

In compliance with clause 3(c)(5) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that no provision of the bill establishes or reauthorizes: (1) a program of the Federal Government known to be duplicative of another Federal program; (2) a program included in any report from the Government Accountability Office to Congress pursuant to section 21 of Public Law 111–139; or (3) a program related to a program identified in the most recent Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance, published pursuant to the Federal Program Information Act (Pub. L. No. 95–220, as amended by Pub. L. No. 98–169).

DISCLOSURE OF DIRECTED RULEMAKING

Pursuant to section 3(i) of H. Res. 5 (115th Congress) the following statement is made concerning directed rulemakings: The Committee estimates that the bill requires no directed rulemakings within the meaning of such section.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 1. Short title

This section cites H.R. 1699 as the ‘Preserving Access to Manufactured Housing Act of 2017.’

Section 2. Mortgage and loan originator definition

This section amends section 103 of the Truth in Lending Act (P.L. 90–321) to specify that the definition of ‘mortgage originator’ does not include any person who is a retailer of manufactured or modular homes unless the retailer or its employees receive compensation for taking a residential mortgage loan application, assisting a consumer in obtaining or applying to obtain a residential mortgage loan, or offering or negotiating terms of a residential mortgage loan that is in excess of any compensation or gain received in a comparable cash transaction.

This section amends section 1503 of the Secure and Fair Enforcement for Mortgage Licensing Act of 2008 (P.L. 110–289) to specify that the definition of ‘loan originator’ does not include a retailer of manufactured or modular homes or its employees unless such retailer or its employees receive compensation or gain for engaging in activities related to taking a residential mortgage loan application, and offering or negotiating terms of a residential mortgage loan for compensation or gain, that is in excess of any compensation or gain received in a comparable cash transaction.

Section 3. High-cost mortgage definition

This section amends section 103 of the Truth in Lending Act (P.L. 90–321), as added by the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (P.L. 111–203), to clarify that a first mortgage on a consumer’s principal dwelling that is considered personal property will be considered a ‘high-cost mortgage’ if the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed the average prime offer rate for a comparable transaction by more than 10 percentage points, in the case of a transaction in an amount of $75,000 or less. This section would also amend the defi-inition of ‘high-cost mortgage’ to include a transaction for less than $75,000 in which the dwelling is personal property and the total points and fees payable in connection with the transaction, other than bona fide third party charges not retained by the mortgage originator, creditor, or an affiliate of the creditor or mortgage originator, exceed the greater of 5 percent of the total transaction amount or $3,000. This section authorizes the CFPB to adjust such amounts to reflect the change in the Consumer Price Index.

For purposes of this definition, payment by check, draft, or other negotiable instrument which may result in the debiting of an open-end credit plan or a credit cardholder's open-end account shall not be considered payment made by use of the plan or the account.

(z) Any reference to any requirement imposed under this title or any provision thereof includes reference to the regulations of the Bureau under this title or the provision thereof in question.

(1) DEFINITION.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term "high-cost mortgage", and a mortgage referred to in this subsection, means a consumer credit transaction that is secured by the consumer's principal dwelling, other than a reverse mortgage transaction, if—

(i) in the case of a credit transaction secured—

(I) by a first mortgage on the consumer's principal dwelling, the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than 6.5 percentage points [(8.5 percentage points, if the dwelling is personal property and the transaction is for less than $50,000)] (10 percentage points if the dwelling is personal property or is a transaction that does not include the purchase of real property on which a dwelling is to be placed, and the transaction is for less than $75,000 (as such amount is adjusted by the Bureau to reflect the change in the Consumer Price Index)) the average prime offer rate, as defined in section 129C(b)(2)(B), for a comparable transaction; or

(II) by a subordinate or junior mortgage on the consumer's principal dwelling, the annual percentage rate at consummation of the transaction will exceed by more than 8.5 percentage points the average prime offer rate, as defined in section 129C(b)(2)(B), for a comparable transaction;

(ii) the total points and fees payable in connection with the transaction, other than bona fide third party charges not retained by the mortgage originator, creditor, or an affiliate of the creditor or mortgage originator, exceed—

(I) in the case of a transaction for $20,000 or more, 5 percent of the total transaction amount; [or]

(II) in the case of a transaction for less than $20,000, the lesser of 8 percent of the total transaction amount or $1,000 (or such other dollar amount as the Bureau shall prescribe by regulation); or

(III) notwithstanding subclauses (I) and (II), in the case of a transaction for less than $75,000 (as such amount is adjusted by the Bureau to reflect the change in the Consumer Price Index) in which the dwelling is personal property (or is a consumer credit transaction that does not include the purchase of real property on which a dwelling is to be placed) the greater of 5 percent of the total transaction amount or $3,000 (as such amount is adjusted by the Bureau to reflect the change in the Consumer Price Index); or

(iii) the credit transaction documents permit the creditor to charge or collect prepayment fees or penalties more than 36 months after the transaction closing or such fees or penalties exceed, in the aggregate, more than 2 percent of the amount prepaid.

(B) INTRODUCTORY RATES TAKEN INTO ACCOUNT.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(i), the annual percentage rate of interest shall be determined based on the following interest rate:

(ii) In the case of a transaction in which the rate of interest varies solely in accordance with an index, the interest rate determined by adding the index rate in effect on the date of consummation of the transaction to the maximum margin permitted at any time during the loan agreement.

(iii) In the case of any other transaction in which the rate may vary at any time during the term of the loan for any reason, the interest charged on the transaction at the maximum rate that may be charged during the term of the loan.

(i) any premium provided by an agency of the Federal Government or an agency of a State;

(ii) any amount that is not in excess of the amount payable under policies in effect at the time of origination under section 203(c)(2)(A) of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1709(c)(2)(A)), provided that the premium, charge, or fee is required to be refundable on a pro-rated basis and the refund is automatically

(i) consistent with the consumer protections against abusive lending provided by the amendments made by subtitle B of title I of the Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994; and

(ii) warranted by the need for credit.

(B) An increase or decrease under subparagraph (A)—

(i) may not result in the number of percentage points referred to in paragraph (1)(A)(i)(I) being less than 6 percentage points or greater than 10 percentage points; and

(ii) may not result in the number of percentage points referred to in paragraph (1)(A)(i)(II) being less than 8 percentage points or greater than 12 percentage points.

(C) In determining whether to increase or decrease the number of percentage points referred to in subparagraph (A), the Bureau shall consult with representatives of consumers, including low-income consumers, and lenders.

(3) The amount specified in paragraph (1)(B)(ii) shall be adjusted annually on January 1 by the annual percentage change in the Consumer Price Index, as reported on June 1 of the year preceding such adjustment.

(4) For purposes of paragraph (1)(B), points and fees shall include—

(A) all items included in the finance charge, except interest or the time-price differential;

(B) all compensation paid directly or indirectly by a consumer or creditor to a mortgage originator from any source, including a mortgage originator that is also the creditor in a table-funded transaction;

(C) each of the charges listed in section 106(e) (except an escrow for future payment of taxes), unless—

(i) the charge is reasonable;

(ii) the creditor receives no direct or indirect compensation; and

(iii) the charge is paid to a third party unaffiliated with the creditor; and

(D) premiums or other charges payable at or before closing for any credit life, credit disability, credit unemployment, or credit property insurance, or any other accident, loss-of-income, life or health insurance, or any payments directly or indirectly for any debt cancellation or suspension agreement or contract, except that insurance premiums or debt cancellation or suspension fees calculated and paid in full on a monthly basis shall not be considered financed by the creditor;

(E) the maximum prepayment fees and penalties which may be charged or collected under the terms of the credit transaction;

MINORITY VIEWS

We believe that low-income families that rely on manufactured housing as an affordable option deserve the same anti-predatory lending standards as other families. H.R. 1699 would not create more access to affordable housing, but instead allow an already incredibly profitable industry to make even more money by charging higher interest rates and fees to low-income borrowers while simultaneously decreasing consumer protections.

First, H.R. 1699 would change the definition of a “mortgage originator” such that rules established by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (Consumer Bureau) for marketing and documenting consumer financial transactions would not apply to manufactured housing salespeople that offer credit to borrowers.

In 2014, the Consumer Bureau published a study on the manufactured housing industry, which noted that individuals who apply for manufactured housing loans “include consumers that may be considered more financially vulnerable and, thus, may particularly stand to benefit from strong consumer protections.” This study also revealed that many practices, consistent with the current definition of a mortgage loan originator, are practices commonly engaged in by retailers of manufactured housing, such as assisting customers in filling out a mortgage application and exempting retailers from the definition may increase consumer costs and reduce incentives to work in the best interests of the customer.¹ Furthermore, while increasing access to credit in the manufactured housing sector is a worthy goal, information from this study, as well as press articles highlighting increased production in the manufactured housing sector,² suggests that reducing consumer protections is not an appropriate trade-off.

Additionally, a years-long joint investigation by The Seattle Times and Center for Public Integrity, which focused on Clayton Homes, the largest manufactured homebuilder in the United States, found that Clayton Homes, which is controlled by multi-billionaire Warren Buffet, reaps significant financial profits from unsuspecting consumers—from producing the housing, to selling the housing, to originating loans that take advantage of vulnerable consumers that leave them with virtually no way to refinance.³ Specifically, the article noted that, “Clayton systematically pursues unwitting minority homebuyers and baits them into costly subprime loans, many of which are doomed to fail,” charges minority borrowers substantially higher rates, on average, than their white counterparts, and “typically charges black people who make over $75,000 a year slightly more than white people who make only $35,000.”⁴

For all twelve months, shipments totaled 64,344 homes compared with 60,210 homes in 2013, a net increase of 6.9 percent”).

Second, H.R. 1699 would increase the spread over the average prime offer rate (APOR) required to trigger Home Ownership and Equity Protection Act (HOEPA) protections for loans that do not include the purchase of real property from 6.5 percent to 10 percent for loans between $50,000 and $75,000 and from 8.5 percent to 10 percent for loans under $50,000. The bill would also raise the fees cap that trigger HOEPA protections to the greater of 5 percent of the total transaction amount or $3,000, whichever is greater. According to Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA) data, obtained from the Consumer Bureau, this new interest rate trigger would have exempted 58 percent of manufactured home loans originated in 2013 from HOEPA protections. HOEPA is an essential protection tool for consumers and we support policy ensuring that all vulnerable homeowners are protected under the statute, including owners of manufactured homes.

For these reasons, we oppose H.R. 1699.
